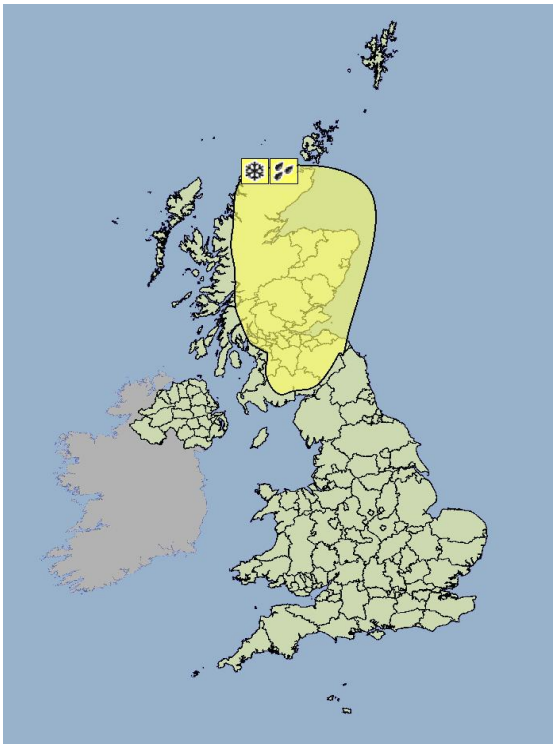
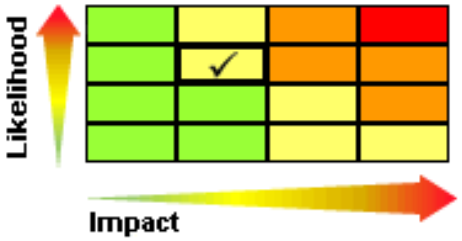
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A band of rain and hill snow is expected to push north across Scotland during the early part of Tuesday, becoming slow moving, before weakening through the day. 5-10 cm of snow is likely to accumulate over higher routes, such as the A9, above 200 m, with 10-15 cm possible on the highest routes above 400 m. Below 200 m rain is expected and 20-30 mm is possible along eastern coastal regions. This rain combined with snow melt may lead to some surface flooding of roads.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain and Snow

Valid from 00:05 on Tue, 06th Mar 2018 until 21:00 on Tue, 06th Mar 2018

Scattered snow showers will affect northern Scotland during the early hours of Tuesday morning. A spell of persistent rain and hill snow is expected to develop through Tuesday morning across southern Scotland, extending into northern Scotland in the afternoon and evening.

Delays to travel and public transport could occur from snow on higher ground. Spray and flooding on low level roads will probably make journey times longer.
